Executive Order States COVID-19 Causes Property Loss and Damage

One of the most pressing legal issues right now is whether Business Interruption insurance covers claims arising from the COVID-19 pandemic. Insurance carriers are already taking the position that the current pandemic does not trigger coverage because there is no “direct physical loss or damage,” as required by most property policies. The insurance carriers’ position conflicts with New York City Executive Order 100, which states that COVID-19 “physically is causing property loss and damage.”
